June 27th, 2026 Monte Cristo Run

In case you missed it ... a total of ten cars and about 17 drivers and passengers braved the dark and stormy skies of Saturday morning. And a few of us were thinking those that stayed home were the smart ones as the sleet began falling as we left the Fresh Market parking lot in Ogden to head up the canyon. Fortunately, everyone had the good sense to go top up or drive a modern saloon (not all by choice) and while the drive up the canyon was a little damp, the weather did not devolve into a "frog floater" or whatever Utahn's call an extreme downpour.

We made the Monte Cristo Overlook in good time and found wet roads, dark clouds and a cold breeze, but no active precipitation. While that was nice, the rather cold air and persistent nearby thunder made for a pretty short impromptu car show. In less than 10 minutes we packed it up and headed back down to Red Rock Taco, where making the drive really paid off.

Just minutes before pulling into the parking lot for lunch, the gods of British Motoring and Tacos smiled upon us with brilliant warm sunshine that was only occasionally broken with a few friendly clouds. Perfect weather for lunch on the outdoor deck.
